What's New In?

Easy access to a range of links using automatic browser redirection. Requirements: Windows XP or newer 1GHz or faster processor Minimum 512MB of RAM 80MB of free hard drive space 1GB of free hard drive space Automatically start up the Internet browser. In other words, click "Run" then type the path to this app followed by a space, then double click on the app, for example to go to the browser will start. By default, the program will launch the Internet Explorer browser if it is installed, otherwise it will launch the default browser. Clicking once on any link within the program will open up that link in the Internet browser. The use of this tool is limited to finding and opening links within a program. Another Internet browser cannot be used simultaneously. You have an endless number of websites to visit. You can access them from your PC, but having to do it manually can be a pain. That's why there are a bunch of apps which promise to search the Internet and open a few favorite websites automatically for you in a single click. However, when they actually do so, the results aren't always that great. Yet another option comes our way in the form of the Open Web Desktop, an app which will search and open your favorite websites for you. It's up to you whether you want it to automatically open your search results in a separate browser tab, as it does in most cases, or if you want it to open a pop-up window. The app comes with various profiles, so you can set it to open up results in the new tab. Furthermore, you can also disable it completely or define specific websites or domains to be automatically searched. It's not always successful in opening results in the new tab though. Still, it's a useful tool which will allow you to search more easily and save you some time. Frozen Locker is a fun tool which does exactly what its name tells: it locks the screen. If you ever want to lock the screen on your Android device, there's no better tool than this one. It's quite simple to use as well, and does what it promises, giving you five to choose from: locked, blank, background, mirrored and disabled screens. Each one of these screen lock modes has its own benefits. For instance, the locked mode will allow you to set a password, yet prevent anyone from
