Similar to HIV in humans, SHIV (simian/human immunodeficiency virus) infection results in immunosuppression and AIDS. There is strong evidence that the activation of the natural killer (NK) cells is essential to prevent AIDS progression. Based on this evidence, we developed an SHIV-based virotherapy using the IL-2 activated NK cells that were engineered to secrete a soluble form of CD95 lig

Keymacro is a program that makes it simple to edit the text in any photo. It's unique in that you can edit the text in such a way that it appears to be part of the picture. So by making text appear on the top of a photo, or in the center, for example, the text will be overlaid onto the photo. To do this, Keymacro offers you the ability to edit the text and the photo, and then let you save the images with your desired text in place. Keymacro has a simple interface where you can add, edit, and remove text and the font in which it appears. You can choose the font you want, the font size, and even the color of the text. You can also position the text and even add a drop shadow. Keymacro does have some limitations: You can only add text to the actual photo and not a new image. Also, you can add a maximum of 100 characters of text to a single image. Some of the things you can do with the text are: move it around, change its size, create a white or black outline, and add a drop shadow to the text. You can also add a border to the text or turn it into a link. You can also change the text to bold or italic. Keymacro is a very simple and useful app that will help you edit the text in any picture. A: There are many photo editors you can use to manipulate your photos and retouch them. A good start is to play with Adobe Photoshop, which is free for Personal Use (i.e. not commercial use), and can be downloaded at Adobe.com Some tips: Try to learn the basics of this program before going too far. It's easy to use but is very powerful, and many of the tutorials on the web show how to use it. Keep experimenting with the "Camera RAW" file format, and the "Photo Styles" preset. Once you start getting the hang of it, you will probably be able to spot problems with your photos in less time than you would with editing them on an average photo editor. Don't try to use the photo editor as a retouching tool. Instead, learn Photoshop the way you would learn any other programming language, and practice on a few simple photo projects, not the dozens you will have to do once you have learned. .4 million in 2012. Fluorescence enhancement upon interaction between carbon nanodots and 2-amino-5-methyl-phenol: Application in the detection of Hg(2+). A novel and simple strategy for the detection of Hg(2+) based on the fluorescence enhancement of carbon nanodots (CNDs) due to the formation of CND-Hg(2+)-2-amino-5-methyl-phenol (Hg(2+)-Amp) ternary complex has been developed. Herein, Amp was used as the fluorescent indicator due to its high sensitivity towards Hg(2+). CNDs were prepared from quinaldine through a hydrothermal process. And its structure was characterized by transmission electron microscopy, X-ray diffraction, X-ray photoelectron spectroscopy and UV-vis spectra. The enhanced fluorescence intensity of CNDs was resulted from the physical quenching of CNDs by Amp. The reaction between CNDs and Hg(2+) is accompanied with a color change of CNDs from yellow to red, which was further investigated with ¹H NMR, UV-vis spectra and fluorescence spectroscopy. Under the optimum conditions, the fluorescence intensity of CNDs was enhanced from 93.8% to 108.4% with the addition of Hg(2+), with a detection limit of 5.8nM and a linear range of 3.2-35.6μM (R(2) =0.9962). And it was successfully applied to the detection of Hg(2+) in water samples with satisfactory recoveries of 86.8-107.2%. Moreover, its mechanism was also investigated with the fluorescence spectra, ¹H NMR spectra, UV-vis spectra and Job's plot analysis. The rational design and simple operation of this system can provide new insight into the development of carbon-
